SCIENTIFIC THESIS

PHD thesis in pref.

The Title: The Role of Facades To Realize Heat Comfort In Office Building In Egypt

The aim of this study is to find an approach to realize heat comfort in office building in Egypt, the study depends on high technical systems and methodologies which can do this aim by using high – tech. Construction of façade material in hot arid countries differs in their climatically circumstances and so their design demands varied The study depends on many themes in order to discuss how to achieve the mentioned aim : The first theme (Architectural Study) : Chapter 1 : Analytical Studies For Office Building Façades Chapter 2 : Analytical Studies For Office Building

The Title : The effect of HI-TECH. construction of curtain wall on energy consumption in building in Egypt

The aim of this study is to find an approach to conserve energy of curtain wall building in Egypt, the study depends on high technical systems and methodologies which can do this aim by using high – tech. Construction of curtain wall all over the world in many countries defers in their climatically circumstances and so their design demands varied The study depends on two main themes in order to discuss how to achieve the aforementioned aim :

The first theme : focuses on general historical study for curtain wall building from its beginning till development at currant age .

The second themes :concentrates on the methodology of energy conservation of building and this by showing successful environmental examples apply the principle of green architecture on its façade and we show this to apply its useful experience when we design our curtain wall façade in Egypt .The research follows discussion , analysis , comparison and scientific deduction as follows
